Issue #132

Good evening Richard:

Thank you for subscribing! Help us by getting others to sign up for this blast by forwarding it around. The Subscribe link is at the bottom of this message.

Some seasonal fun: Launch Google on your computer and open up a search window--type "Let it snow" without the quotes.....

I will be posting my annual "TRACK SANTA" links on Christmas Eve. Drop by the site and enjoy the fun.

Thanks for your support this holiday shopping season.

Winter Begins Today - This is the shortest day of the year (for daylight)

Winter begins, so I guess it ought to snow-See the site for specific area snow amounts

A storm will track just offshore tonight bringing a round of rain, and rain/snow to areas north and west of the MA Pike.

2" to as much as 4" is possible. Not a big storm.

A white Christmas for a few of us.

Stay tuned...

Traveling Friday?

Please remember, if you want to help support RichLefko.Com, you must click through a link on the site for Amazon or Other World Computing.

IT IS REALLY IMPORTANT that you click through RichLefko.com for OWC and Amazon!!

Please use our fine regional sponsors listed below.

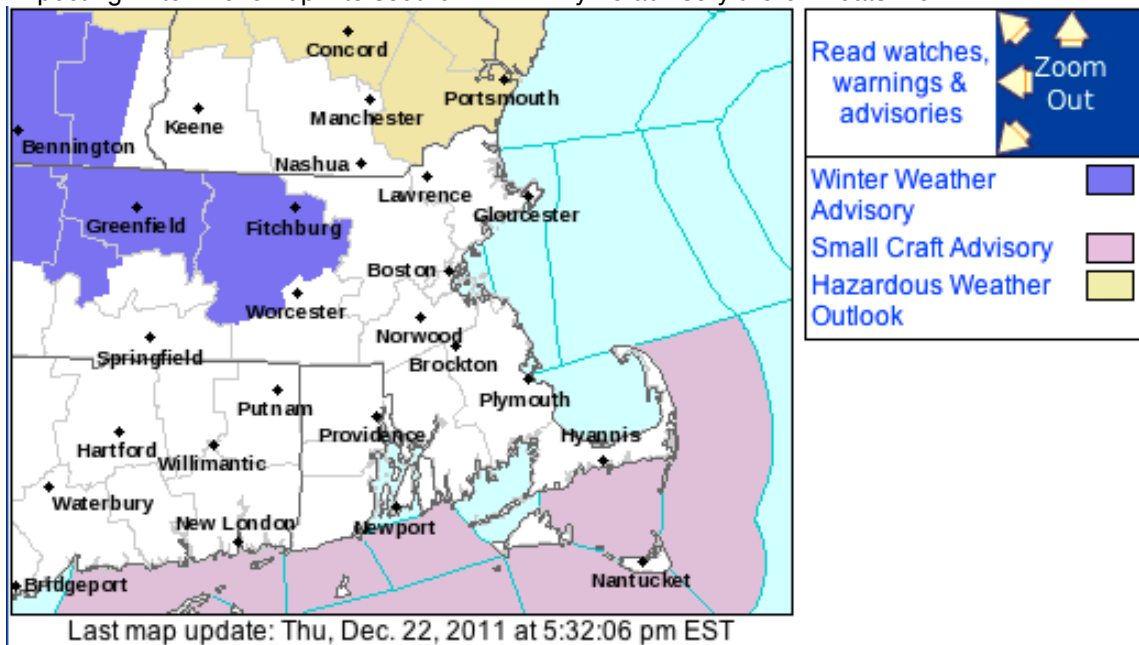

Sign up your home email if you only get this at work. Storms come on weekends too. Weathermail@mac.com

Rest of the week: Snow/rain continues into Friday morning with additional accumulations, tapering to flurries with much colder temps by nightfall and the weekend.

Current Advisory Area:

Go to the Home Page for Advisory Links

Expecting 2" to 4" even up into southern NH. Why no advisory there? Beats me?

Here is the Live Radar link.

The rain is still off to our west at this hour.

Friday Surface Map:

Storm system quickly heads out to sea while cold high pressure takes control.

Looking ahead:

The Weekend:

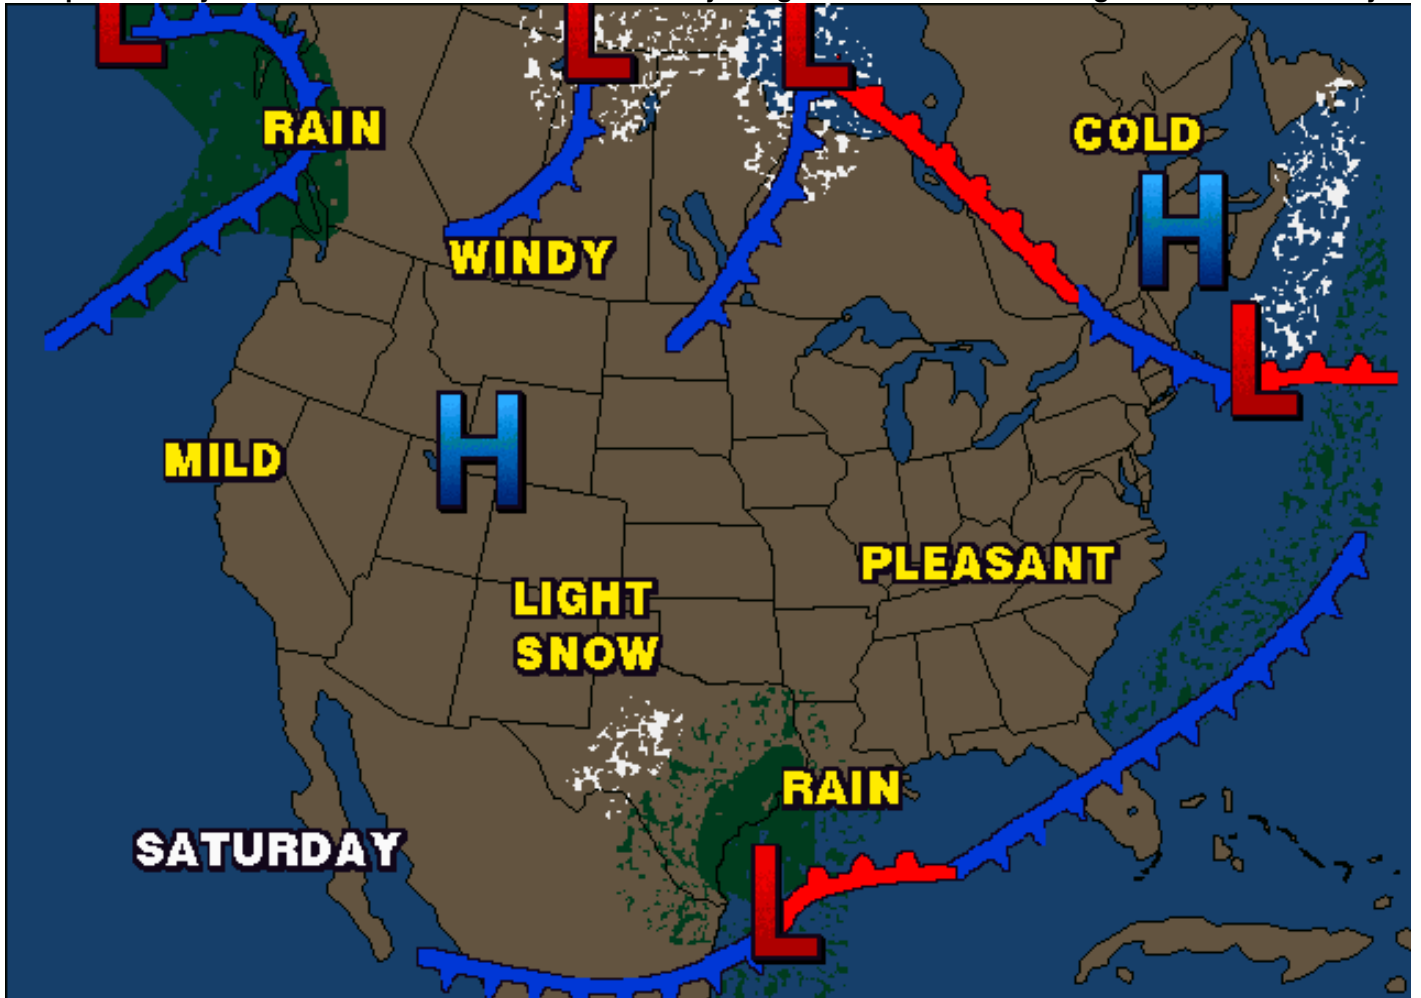

Much colder this weekend. Highs only in the low to mid 30s and lows in the teens. There is a chance of snow showers on Christmas Day as several low pressure systems track to our north across Canada. Seems appropriate.

Stay tuned. Check the home page for updates.

3 Days out:

Saturday Surface Map:

Low pressure systems will track across Canada and may bring snow showers to the region on Christmas Day.

Next week: Temps begin to moderate next week. Long Range: Looks quiet and not as cold into mid week.

Remember, this is an "outlook." Check the main page for actual forecasts.

Precipitation Outlook:

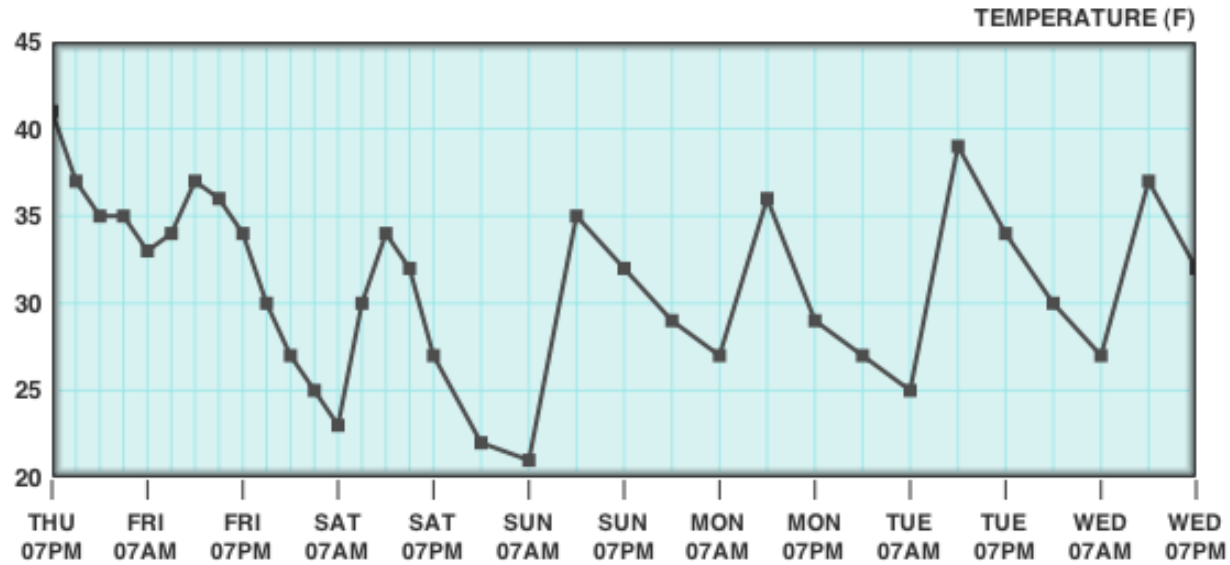

12 HOUR PROBABILITY OF PRECIPITATION (%)

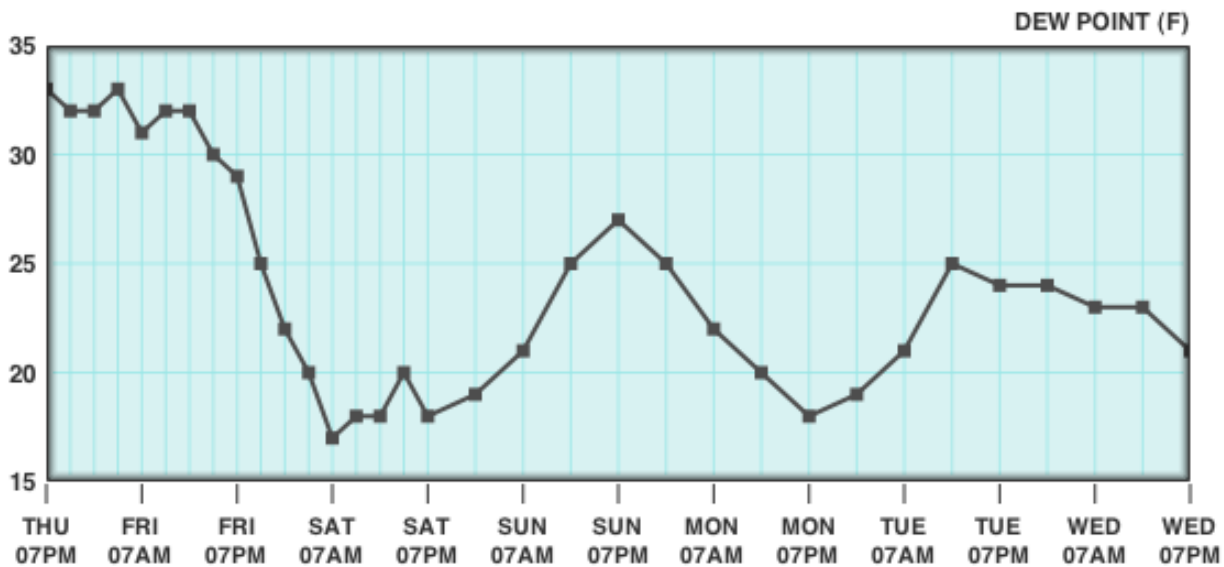

Temperature Outlook:

Not really a forecast--this far out, we'll call it an outlook.

Dew Point Outlook: High dew points (above 64°) mean humid weather in the summer.

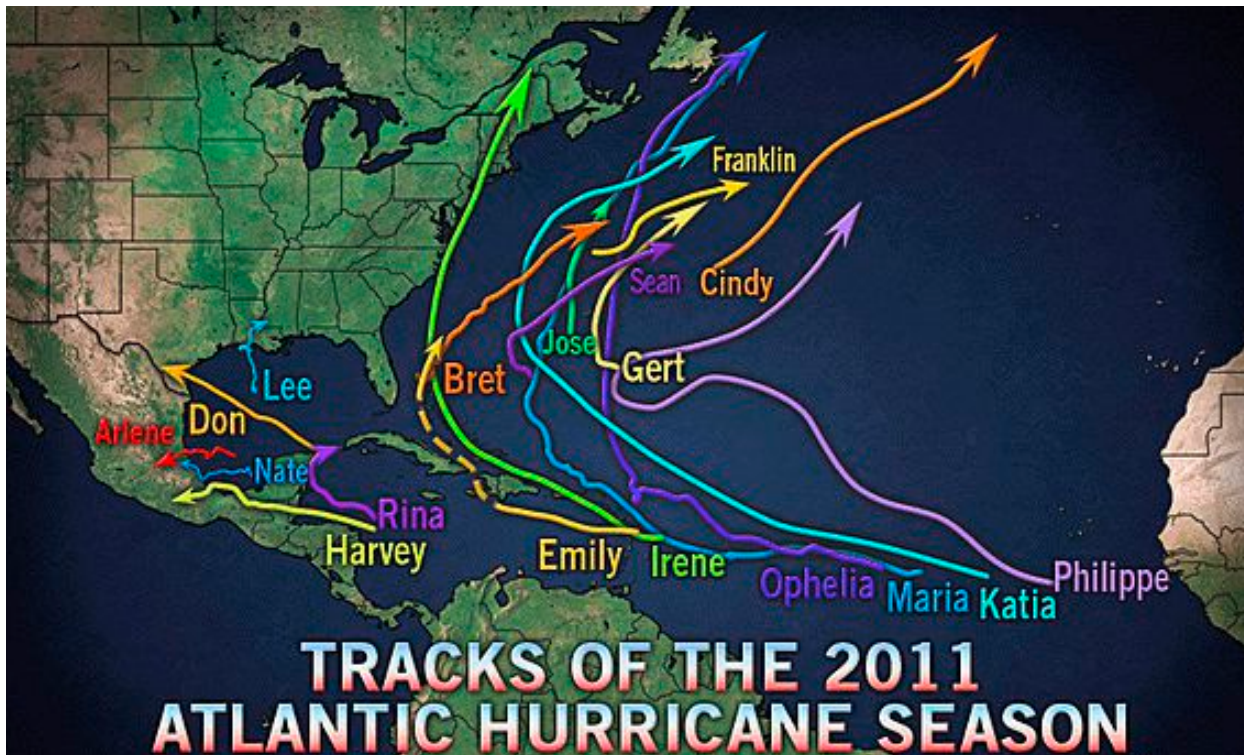

In winter we use the dew point to tell us how low the temperature might fall.

Hurricane Outlook:

See the 2011 Hurricane pages.
